

Sam says:

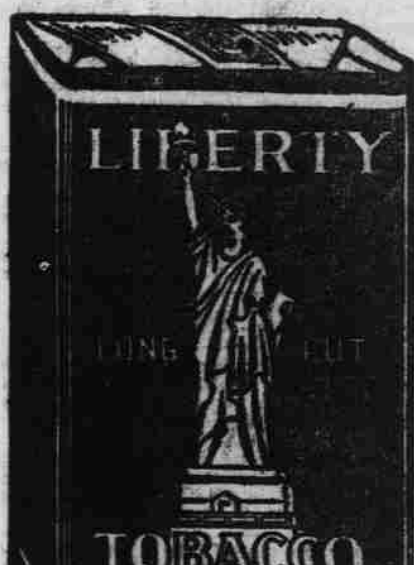

"One day a pal o' mine handed me his package of LIBERTY Long Cut an' I loaded my old pipe and smoked up on it.

"Pretty soon I began to throw back my shoulders an' wish a grizzly bear'd come along so's I could choke him to death an' tear his hide off.

"Gee, man! You could have smelt my rubber heels scorchin' when I hot-footed it down the street that night to plank down my nickel for a package o' LIBERTY."

LIBERTY hits the spot in a grown-up man because it's made of that rare old Kentucky Long Leaf—and nothing else.

All long, clean, ripe, perfect leaves—no short, broken ones—no hard stems. It's tobacco—just tobacco.

LIBERTY is aged from three to five years to bring out the ripe, snappy flavor—the smoothness and the rich juiciness. That's why it makes such a tasty, solid, lasting chew—why it gives you a long, full-flavored, satisfying smoke.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Civic Federation Has Musical Tea—Few Calls for Assistance This Winter—Officers and Committees of Business Men's Association—Borough May Have Ball Team as Business Attraction.

Joseph N. Lavalley, A. P. Woodward and E. H. Keach are at the Church homestead in Ashford for a few days of ice fishing.

Bishop Acheson is to preach at the morning service at St. Alban's church Sunday.

Musical Tea.

The Civic Federation's musical tea at Mrs. J. O. Armstrong's Thursday afternoon was a success.

George A. Loomis of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Will Meet at Parsonage.

Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Swadlow are to have the members of the Crusaders at the Baptist parsonage for a meeting this evening.

John A. Devine of New London was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Mrs. Ethel Dillon, who was injured Monday night by being thrown from a team, is still suffering from the effects of the injury.

A number of the members of the order of Elks resident here will be in Putnam this morning to attend the funeral of M. R. Joy.

The physicians in Danielson are being kept busy attending an unusually large number of grip patients.

There is no shortage of anthracite coal in Danielson.

A large number of new books have been added to the Brooklyn library, which contains more than 5,000 volumes.

Storms Delay Building Work.

Bad weather this week has delayed the work of construction at industrial place, where an addition is being built on mill No. 2.

All Factories Running.

The leasing of the Danielson West company factory to the River Weaving company, Inc., leaves no more available factories in Danielson.

Arrangements have been made for conducting a series of weekly prayer meetings at homes in the South Kill and Mashantuck sections of the town.

It is stated that next reports on work done by students at Brown university will show the names of young men from this section in the honor list.

There is some curiosity here as to whether anything will be done at this session of congress relative to putting through the bill providing for a federal postoffice building in Danielson.

Extension School at Woodstock.

Some Killington farmers plan to attend sessions of the extension school to be held in Woodstock Jan. 18-21. Lectures are to be given by professors from the State Agricultural college and other competent persons.

Few Calls for Aid.

The Danielson Benevolent society is having very few calls from families for assistance during this winter, the needy being fewer in number than for many winters past, so far as reports show.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Philotha C. Small.

At her home in Brooklyn Thursday afternoon a funeral service for Mrs. Philotha C. Small was conducted by Rev. A. E. Kimbrough, pastor of the Brooklyn Baptist church. Burial was in West Thompson. Members of the family acted as bearers. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

Mrs. Small, 68, died Monday morning after a long illness. She was a native of Brooklyn. On her mother's side Mrs. Small was a descendant of the famous Narragansett tribe of Indians. Her funeral service three of her favorite hymns were sung by Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Myers—O. Walt and Murrum Not, Blessed Assurance, and Jesus, Lover of My Soul. Martha Devinney acted as accompanist. Mrs. Small leaves five daughters, Mrs. Shirley Simmons, Mrs. Shepard Wilson, Mrs. Harry Manning, Mrs. Sarah Ward and C. Faith Small.

W. H. Barron Sales Manager.

Will H. Barron, who has been handling the line for some time, has been made sales manager for the company. Of his appointment, which dates from the first of the year, a trade journal says:

Will H. Barron will be the field general in charge of the sales force this year. Mr. Barron is well known to the trade, having been sales manager for the Eclipse Manufacturing company (Danielson) for a number of years. His cheerful, energetic, forceful enthusiasm will keep the forces on their toes and getting results all the time. The company is to be congratulated on getting the services of Mr. Barron, a man so well known and so well liked by the trade.

The sales organization of which Mr. Barron now has charge covers the country from coast to coast.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION.

Officers and Committees for 1916—Plans to Aid Borough Business.

With organization complete for 1916, officers of the Danielson Business Men's association are planning to put work and enthusiasm into their effort to make the year show some results. It has been decided to invite President Howard Elliott of the New Haven road to come to Danielson and address a meeting. Mr. Elliott has never visited this corner of the state and his presence here as the guest of the business men would be decidedly welcome.

Whether an annual banquet will be held this year has not been decided, but this matter will be discussed and a decision arrived at soon.

Going outside the usual staid channels of efforts of business men's organizations, the local association this year will look upon some new fields and methods to aid Danielson in its commercial development and attractiveness. One plan talked of for bringing people into town is the organization of a baseball team—a real one. The experience of surrounding towns in attracting crowds, including a great many Danielson people, on Saturday afternoons last summer was a lesson that did not escape attention. Those who favor baseball as an aid to business figure that not only will Danielson people stay at home and spend their money here if a good team is provided, but a great many people from other towns will come here to see games and do shopping.

Danielson was once a red-hot ball town and would be again, given a team that can play the game.

The officers and newly appointed committees are as follows:

Officers—President, A. W. Williams, druggist; vice president, Roland H. Gray of the Connecticut Mills Co.; secretary, Clifford Starkweather, treasurer.

BEST PEOPLE ON EARTH

Score Success with Annual Charity Ball—Many Visiting Elks.

The annual Charity ball under the auspices of Putnam lodge of Elks was held in Union hall Thursday evening and was a brilliant affair, reaching up to the standard that always has been maintained. Members of the lodge and their ladies, in addition to Putnam, Pomfret and other surrounding towns were present to join with the Putnam people in enjoying one of the happiest events of the season.

The hall was very prettily decorated, the colors being purple and white. At each side of the stage were the second and third cron, and the antlers illuminated by a tiny electric bulb. An Elks' clock, with an electrically illuminated face, was suspended over the center of the stage which was banked with palms and ferns.

The splendid music for the dancing was by Fox's famous orchestra of Providence. The dance program was preceded by an hour's concert, arranged as follows:

Overture—Fest. Leutner; Cornet Solo, Sig. Alberto Perri; The Princess Pat, Victor Herbert; Second Regiment March, Reeves.

The members of the lodge in charge of the affair were as follows: Floor director, George Lewis; assistant floor director, Oscar Rich; aides, Frank Utkraka, Louis E. Kennedy, James B. Tatem, Jr., Charles E. Dean; committee of arrangements, George Lewis, John Lynch, Frank Pokraka, L. E. Kennedy, Oscar Rich, Harry Medbury, J. B. Tatem, Jr., W. D. Wilson, C. E. Dean, John T. King.

EXTENSION SCHOOL

Planned at South Woodstock Next Week—Hoped to Exceed in Interest That Just Held at Preston City.

The Cooperative Extension school at South Woodstock will open at 7 o'clock Tuesday, January 18. The teachers will be men from the Connecticut Agricultural College Extension service and the public will be in charge of northern Windham county. The committee in charge of this school for the farmers are:

Chairman, L. H. Healey; vice chairman, E. E. Brown; secretary, George H. Hamilton; committee on advertising and membership, F. K. Haines, chairman; H. R. Hurlbut, S. R. Ham; committee on arrangements, W. C. Child, J. F. Prehn; committee on entertainment, J. F. Prehn, Mr. Erickson.

The subjects which the Windham county farmers have asked to be given are: Soils and Crops, Dairying, Poultry.

New for Connecticut.

A school of this kind is new in Connecticut, the Woodstock school being the second to be held in the state. The first has just closed at Preston City, in New London county. The following is taken from an account of the school written by the local chairman of the school for the day, the Bulletin of January 8th, regarding the last day's session:

First at Preston City.

"The extension school at Preston City was brought to a close Friday with a record attendance. The present were about equally divided between the men's and women's departments. In the men's department the morning program was opened at 9 o'clock when Benjamin C. Southwick gave a lecture on Legume Crops.

Mr. Southwick showed that permanent moving should only be maintained on heavy, moist soil. Grass requires nitrogen and clovers thrive on phosphoric acid and potash. Top dressing should be applied only in the spring and on fields where the soil is not run out. There was a discussion on the variety of ensilage corn and corn for grain.

"Karl B. Musser of Storrs college then took the school to the dairy barn where he closed the day with an interesting two hours in scoring a dairy cow.

"The league crops were taken up by the Danielson Trust Co.'s treasurer, Kent A. Durbie, house furnishings.

"TIS" SORE, Tired Feet

NO PUFFED-UP, BURNING, TENDER, ACHING FEET—NO CORNS OR CALLOUSES.

"Tis" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, callouses, blisters, bunions and chilblains.

"Tis" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work, how long you dance, how far you walk, or how long you remain on your feet, "Tis" brings restful foot comfort.

"Tis" is magical, grand, wonderful for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet, and how comfortable, how happy you feel. Your feet just tingle for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get "Tis" now from any druggist or department store. End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy. Just think! Your whole year's foot comfort for only 15 cents.

again by Mr. Southwick at the afternoon session at 1 o'clock. The final two hours were given over to a demonstration of the skill of the drawing of poultry before both departments of the school. This was in charge of Roy Jones.

Home-Makers' Course.

"In the home-makers' course there was a demonstration of meats and meat substitutes. Veal loaf was served with cream sauce and peas, hashed brown potatoes, beans, potatoes, vegetarian loaf and salmon croquettes.

"During the afternoon session Miss Maud E. Hayes lectured on the well-planned kitchen, and at 2 o'clock the ladies adjourned to the men's department to witness the poultry killing and dressing demonstration.

The Connecticut Agricultural college extension school, which has been held the last four days, surpassed in interest and helpfulness the expectations of the most enthusiastic. Being held the first school of the kind ever held in the state, the farmers hardly came the first day, both men and women, continued through the course, almost without exception, and daily as the days passed, what excellent lectures and demonstrations were being given, the attendance increased.

Conducted in College Style.

"The school has been conducted in regular college style with one hour lecture period and two hours for demonstrations, both the men's and women's departments have had blackboard and varieties of food. The school also brought a library for use by those wishing, containing forty of the best books on agricultural and home economics subjects. The typewritten outlines which were passed around before each lecture were most helpful feature and were kept by every student and taken home to be referred to as occasion demands. The constant interruption of the professors by questions from the audience was proof conclusive of the great interest.

Hearty Cooperation.

"There was hearty cooperation between the teachers and the committee and everything passed off with out a hitch. County Agent F. C. Warner has been the moving spirit from the first and deserves a great deal of credit for the success of the school. * * * The attendance totaled 266 for the four days.

The three subjects, Dairying, Soils and Crops, and Poultry, were given in the men's department and the various subjects in the women's department, were of great interest to all. Karl B. Musser, extension agent, handled the first subject; Prof. B. G. Southwick, assistant professor of agronomy, covered the second subject; Roy E. Jones, extension agent, handled the third, the poultry and Miss Maud E. Hayes, professor home economics, assisted by Miss Hallock, conducted the home-makers' course.

The rest of the article goes into detail regarding these courses and the different points brought out in the discussions. In short, it was a most successful day, and the way it was handled by the men in charge.

With the able and efficient officers and the public will be in charge of school at Woodstock, and the hearty cooperation of the state college, this school should at least equal the record of success made by the first extension school in agriculture held in Connecticut.

MADE CHRISTMAS SIGNIFICANT.

Public School Children Caught the True Spirit—Report of Superintendent Files.

The report of H. W. Files, superintendent of schools, for December, contains the following items of interest.

The registration figures for the month show the following facts. There were registered 469 boys and 419 girls, totaling 888. The average membership for December was 744, where the November figures were 757; and the average attendance for the month of December was 693.5 as compared with 708 for November. The absences for December totaled 1016 against 911-2 for November. In December 89 pupils are credited with 155 instances on the part of 38 pupils. The number of pupils with records of perfect attendance during December was 267. The membership in all the schools at the close of the term was 765.

There's usually a passable excuse for poor attendance figures and to account for December's poor showing it is necessary only to mention that 10 children were absent on account of quarantine conditions, 5 of these children being in one family, and the rest lost time on account of the prevailing heavy colds.

Towards the close of the term the teachers began to make preparations for observing Christmas with appropriate exercises. It seemed to all in the school that the day and the occasion ought not to lose its significance. The music work for the period was largely carol music for the pupils which was distributed to the pupils and Christmas tree exercises, the Community tree itself being the result of a suggestion dropped in the course of a discussion at a teachers' meeting.

The children of the Israel Putnam school, by penny contributions raised funds sufficient for 20 potted plants which were distributed to the pupils and shut-ins regardless of race or church affiliations. They also prepared Christmas trees, decorations and gifts for their school friends who were confined at home, and prepared baskets for others. Through the kindness of F. S. Bruce who contributed the use of his truck, the school children were able to run their "Sunshine Special" on Friday afternoon, the 24th, and make their own distribution.

As a result of this work, the term closed at Christmas with a better idea of the real significance of the season than at any time the big day has been observed, and a better spirit seemed to pervade.

DEATH OF ALEXANDER W. MACDONALD.

Rest for Old-Time Printer and Editor, After 80 Years at the Case.

Alexander W. Macdonald, editor and one of the proprietors of the Putnam Patriot, and probably the oldest printer and newspaper man in the United States, died at his home in Putnam, Thursday at 10.30 a. m., in the 84th year of his age. Before giving up active work a little over four years ago he probably held the record for term of service, being 80 years at the case.

Mr. Macdonald was born in Quebec, July 4th, 1822. He came of a long-lived line of hard Scotch ancestors who migrated to Nova Scotia, and found their way into Canada. He was but ten years old when he apprenticed himself to a printer and learned the trade, working from five o'clock in the morning to nine o'clock at night. While but a lad in his teens he started out into the world and worked his way on foot from his Canadian home to New York city as a journeyman printer. Arriving in New York he obtained employment on the metropolitan dailies. He has been heard to say that at that time the big dailies were printed on a Washington hand press. He made the acquaintance of Horace Greeley, then editor of The Tribune, and was one of a number of young men connected with papers on Newspaper Row whom Mr. Greeley induced to purchase house lots and build homes in Mount Vernon, which was then a wilderness. He was then a widower.

He drifted to the middle west and was connected with newspapers in St. Paul, St. Louis and other cities. But eventually he returned to Underwood by the way, with a partner, founded the Scientific American. Subsequently the paper was sold to Munn & Company and Mr. Macdonald remained with the publication as head of the composing room.

In 1882 Mr. Macdonald purchased the Putnam Patriot, a weekly newspaper in Putnam, and continued as its editor up to his 90th year when he sustained a shock which incapacitated him from further active work. After a few years as the editor and proprietor of the Patriot he took in L. O. Williams, his foreman, as a partner and the business has since been conducted under the firm name of Macdonald & Williams.

After Mr. Macdonald had made arrangements for taking over the Patriot he started for Mount Vernon for his final rest, and the night that he was on the way Union Block, the building in which his plant was located, was totally destroyed by fire. Undoubtedly the loss he returned and immediately purchased the outfitting of a new plant and the publication came out the following week, although somewhat reduced in size. The second issue was gotten out in the usual form.

Mr. Macdonald remained at the case until he was stricken, setting his editorials without notes or copy. He was decidedly reticent about speaking of himself and his past life, but from time to time let drop some experience that denoted an interesting career. He was approached in his later years several times by metropolitan newspaper writers for press associations who attempted to interview him, but he always waived them
